2 GUILTY OF MURDER IN DETECTIVE'S DEATH

A jury that reached its decision in thirty-five minutes found George C. Moore, 34 years old, of 241 West 135th Street, and Raymond Haughton, 24, of 741 Jennings Street, the Bronx, charged with the fatal shooting of Detective James Burke during a hold-up, guilty of first-degree murder, without recommendation of clemency, in Bronx County Court yesterday.

Their trial before Judge James M. Barrett had lasted for nine days. They were taken to Bronx County Jail, to await sentence on April 15.

Among the spectators was Detective Burke's brother, William, who had been present at all sessions of the trial. He burst into tears at the announcement of the verdict.

Testimony at the trial was that a bullet from Moore's gun killed the detective last Dec. 13 during a hold-up in a liquor store at 1439 Webster Avenue, the Bronx.
